Plan board keeps Riverfront District application on table

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Plan Commission breezed through a handful of applications Monday night but not the one an overflow crowd showed up for an hour early — and sat through the entire Board of Zoning Appeals meeting — just to secure a seat in council chambers.

In the end, the application everybody wanted to weigh in on — a proposed amendment to the city's zoning ordinance to create a Riverfront District that would allow targeted development of a current section of greenspace along Vaughn Drive that was tabled last month — never got off the table.

The amendment came up under Old Business as the final item on the Plan Commission's agenda, more than two hours after most of the crowd had lined up on the sidewalk outside Madison City Hall to get into the Plan meeting. But before any discussion, public comment or action could take place, Plan Commission member Patrick Thevenow requested a point of order that the issue be delayed, citing alleged "improper notice" and that the applicant — Mayor Bob Courtney and the city's economic development office — had "verbally altered" the original amendment proposal and the Commission and public should have those changes in writing prior to consideration.

"It was brought to my attention before the meeting that we may have an issue of improper notice regarding this application ... I believe that improper notice has been provided," Thevenow said. "This is an important discussion for our community — as everybody here is well aware — and I don't want this to come back on us for procedural legal issues should this be taken to court after this, so I would move that we keep this application on the table and not take it up again until a special meeting can be held in larger venue than city hall."

Joe Jenner, attorney for the city, noted the issue was "still on the table" after being placed there during the Plan Commission's May meeting. He also said it was his understanding that the amendment

Grote donates new weather vane for Lamplighter gazebo

BY BOB DEMAREE

The gazebo at Madison's Lamplighter Park will soon be topped by a weather vane after the original one was stolen about 15 years ago.

On Wednesday, Grote Industries presented the city with a new weather vane that soon will be installed to replace the original.

"Lamplighter Park on our beautiful riverfront is a symbol of community generosity and once again the Grote family steps up to support replacing what has long been lost," said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "The new weather vane is something we all get to enjoy again."

The weather vane donated is a version of the original featuring a decorative riverboat.

Dominic Grote, president and CEO of Grote Industries, said the original weather vane was created with the riverboat to honor Walter Grote Sr., who in 1959 moved the company from Cincinnati to Madison. "He loved the Ohio River. He loved riverboats," Grote said, noting that love of the river led to Grote Industries' relocation to Madison where the company has become a world leader in in the lighting industry. More than 65 years later, Madison continues to serve as Grote's world headquarters.

A love of the riverfront then led to Grote's investment in Lamplighter Park and the gazebo with the weather vane on top. Dominic Grote said the original weather vane was created by former Madison tinsmith Patrick Cunningham. "It was a beautiful model, almost a scale model riverboat that was the original as part of the gazebo, and it got stolen," said Dominic Grote. "It was big and made of copper."

Grote said after years had passed, they wanted to replace the original vane but with one "not so enticing" to thieves but still somewhat of a replica of the original.

Grote Industries presented a new weather vane to the city of Madison to replace one that was stolen approximately 15 years ago from atop the gazebo in Lamplighter Park. The new weather vane was constructed mostly by Rodney Kelley before he died from cancer last year. by two employees of the Grote model shop — Rodney Kelley, a 30-year employee who retired in February 2024 after he became too ill to work and died of cancer on July 4, 2024, did most of the work. Ed Ricketts then finished the project.

"They both worked in our model shop. Those guys can make anything," said Grote.

"Rodney definitely would have completed it if his health would have allowed," said his wife, Debra Kelley. She noted much of the work was done while he had cancer, which he battled for eight years. "Rodney would have still been working if his health hadn't" kept him from it. "He loved the job."

Music City goes to Nashville

If that headline is a bit disorienting (intentionally, sorry, I couldn't resist) let's just clarify that we're talking about "Indiana's" Music City, and we're talking about Nashville, Indiana, not Tennessee. The city of Madison is sending a delegation this weekend, June 21, to represent our town at the annual FARMette music conference in Nashville.

So what the heck is FARMette? I'll insert a description from their website here: "It's a one-day music networking and showcasing conference designed to elevate the voices of folk and singer-songwriters in Indiana while fostering connections with industry partners who hire them — festivals, fairs, venues, promoters, recording label execs and more. This conference celebrates the transformative power of music and community, inviting participants to rekindle their sense of purpose and creativity."

In a nutshell, it's a chance for all the movers and shakers in the Indiana music industry to get together and make new things happen. And of course, the Madison Music Movement had to be there to tell our story and learn what else is going on around the state. This event is not open to the public; it's an industry conference for music pros only. It's put on by the Hoosier Original Music Association, or HOO-MAC. A super cool name and pretty cool stuff, right?

In addition to attending, Madison was invited to host a musician's showcase at the event, where attendees can drop in and get a sample of the great variety of talent we have in our home town. Our booth this year will feature Connor Dermon, Selah Luke, Vaguely Familia, Zach Hackney, Robert Reynolds, Charlee and Cam, Jordan Wilson, Anthony Ray Wright and Jimmy Davis.

Jane Vonderheide will be the showcase host, representing the Madison Music Movement. Tony Novello is going to promote MadHop Music Festival, plus Pam Brown and Mark Rogers will be there for the Kindred Folk Society.

"I'm excited about this opportunity," says Jane. "I think Madison is gonna show up with a bang and really tell a great story about the special music scene we have going on these days. People are going to see how our town is a real focal point of musical energy in our state

State Road 56 slide repair to take longer

Completion now set for August

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Slide repairs will now keep State Road 56 between Madison and Brooksborg closed until early August, according to an announcement Wednesday by the Indiana Department of Transportation.

The road was first closed March 27 after a road slide occurred between North Bee Camp Road and North Shirks Hollow Road near Brooksborg. In April, GeoSpecialties was hired by INDOT to make emergency slide repairs.

The project was initially announced to reopen the road in late May but then pushed back to late June. INDOT now reports that the schedule has been modified again due to weather conditions and additional slide repair work on State Road 56.

The official detour route for the project follows U.S. 421 to State Road 129 to State Road 56.

Bridge work to delay I-71 traffic in Carroll

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KYTC) says overnight bridge work on Interstate 71 in Carroll and Gallatin counties could result in significant delays for through traffic on Monday, June 30 through Tuesday, July 1.

The bridge work is scheduled to begin at approximately 7 p.m. on Monday, June 30 on Interstate 71 northbound between mile points 53.6 and 53.3. Contractors will begin setting bridge beams for the new I-71 overpass bridge over KY 47.

The work will require six rolling roadblocks over an approximately 13-hour period impacting northbound traffic, each consisting of a 25-minute slow roll at 10-15 mph, followed by a complete stop of up to 15 minutes to accommodate the delivery and placement of each beam. After each beam is set, traffic will be allowed to clear before the next roadblock begins. The process will repeat six times throughout the night.

Although traffic will continue to move at reduced speeds during the rolling portion of the operation, motorists should anticipate total delays of more than one hour and are strongly encouraged to seek alternate routes. All work is expected to be completed by 8 a.m. on Tuesday, July 1, at which time the rolling roadblocks will end and all traffic control devices will be removed from the roadway.

In addition to the impacts to I-71 northbound, KY 47 will experience up to six temporary closures of approximately 15 minutes each, managed by flaggers. The closures will occur only during the actual beam setting process and will help ensure safety for all travelers in the area.

Fires, downed power lines keep firefighters busy

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison Fire Department responded to several incidents late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning including downed power lines and fire alarms including reports of two structure fires.

The initial fire was in the 700 block of East Main Street in downtown Madison at about 11:20 p.m. First arriving units found a single family residence with heavy smoke conditions on the east side of the residence.

Firefighters, police officers and neighbors assisted evacuating the occupant from the residence, who was transported to Norton King's Daughters' Health for evaluation. The fire was brought under control in approximately 30 minutes and is being investigated jointly by Indiana State Fire Marshals Office and Madison Fire Department.

"We would like to thank the swift actions taken by neighbors not only to alert the occupant but also making the call to 911 to report the incident," said a news release by Madison Fire Department. "Also to the immediate actions taken to assist the occupant from the residence."

At the same time units were arriving on East Main Street, the Jefferson County Central Disptach advised that there was a report of another structure fire in the 1900 Block of Wells Drive on Madison's hilltop. Units arriving there confirmed there was smoke coming from a residence. This was due to a lightning strike that actually caused damage to two separate homes. Duke Energy secured power to both homes due to the damage caused by the strike. Madison Fire Department was assisted by Madison Township Fire Department, Hanover Township Fire Department, Madison Police, NKDH EMS, Duke Energy and Center Pointe Energy.

"These are simple reminders that smoke detectors save lives and the kindness of neighbors often make lifelong impacts," the release said.

At the time the fire was reported there was a power outage over a large area of downtown Madison with traffic lights out from Mill Street east. As of Thursday afternoon parts of the east end of downtown Madison were still without power.

MOBILE HOME DESTROYED TUESDAY

A fire in northern Jefferson County on Tuesday night destroyed a mobile home in the 7000 block of 1200 North just south of the Jennings County line.

Dupont-Lancaster Township Fire Chief George Canfield said no one was home at the time the fire was reported by a passerby at approximately 8:50 p.m. Canfield said flames were showing when firefighters arrived. He said the mobile home, which was home to two adults and four children, was a "total loss" and the American Red Cross was contacted to provide assistance to the family.

Firefighters were on scene until 11:30 p.m. finishing clean up after the fire which Canfield said was out by approximately 10:30 p.m.

Dupont-Lancaster Township Fire Department received assistance from Madison Township Fire Department and Vernon Township Fire Department in Jennings County. Rescue 20 from Jennings County was also on scene along with Sheriff's officers from both Jennings and Jefferson counties.

had been given proper notice and that it was also his opinion that the proposal had not been officially amended nor could it be until it was taken off the table. “I do think that the city has proposed some potential amendments, but as I understood those amendments would officially be made this evening and that is not uncommon for an applicant to make amendments or even for the board to ask for amendment to be made at the meeting,” Jenner said. “I don’t believe there’s been any expansion of the original application. In fact, there’s probably been a reduction in things within the application. So, it would be my opinion that I think it could proceed as it stands but that’s totally up to the board.”

Plan Commission Chairman Josh Wilber, who along with Thevenow and Joel Storm are also members of Madison City Council, said he favored delaying discussion and action until legal issues can be answered and suggested leaving the application on the table while working to schedule a special meeting just to discuss Riverfront District zoning. “I’m a pretty conservative person and I want to be pretty legally sound on this,” Wilber told Jenner. “I know you are giving us some advice that this could be legally correct but I’d rather it be 100% OK. I’m looking at the exhibit and there are red lines that were sent out so there are amendments to this zoning that were sent out. So what concerns me is we get down the road and this gets kicked back and we all have to go right through this process again. I certainly, personally, do not want this board to have to go through it all over again assuming it would get kicked back. “I know there are a lot of people (in attendance) who wanted to talk and if we keep this on the table tonight that would not let them talk but that is the case. In the same sense I don’t want to do this to this board or to the city council and mayor. If we get this kicked back, we’re four months behind from having to go all the way back through the process. And that’s not what I want to happen,” Wilber added. “I want it to be a pretty sound process ... Based on that, I think we leave it tabled and then we work to get a special meeting ...” “May I just interrupt you for a second?” asked Courtney, who had come to the podium prepared to speak on the application. “Joe, is it your opinion that the hearing can proceed? Our attorney is advising the Plan Commission that the hearing can proceed. We are here gathered tonight and ... At that point many of those in the audience, some holding small signs opposing the amendment, shouted opposition over the mayor until Wilber regained order.

Thevenow also interjected, “Point of order. This resolution’s not on the table.” “I don’t believe there’s a second to the motion,” added Plan Commission member Karl Eaglin. “I withdraw that motion because it’s still on the table,” Thevenow countered. “Let’s back up,” Wilber said, quieting everyone. “Right now this is on the table and for us to talk about this we would have to take it off the table ... it is my recommendation not to (do that) until we are sure we have” the issues resolved. Jenner said since there already had been some discussion, the board could opt to recognize the mayor for some remarks but Wilber said he did not want to “distract the board from what we’re taking about” which was the recommendation to leave the issue on the table. “I don’t think it hurts anything to take our time and just be doubly sure everything is done as it should be,” said Thevenow. “Realistically, about the only action you can take at this point is to adjourn,” said Jenner. “I make a motion we adjourn,” said board member Jerry Ralston. “Second the motion,” said Thevenow. Wilber then called for a “yay” or “nay” vote by voice but the members’ responses were drowned out by audience noise. Citing the inability to hear the votes, Jenner noted “I did hear a nay and I wanted our staff and secretary to be able to record that” and called for an individual roll-call vote. Wilber, Thevenow, Ralston, Mike Armstrong, Van Crafton and Rick Farris all voted yes with Karl Eaglin, Zac Laughlin and Joel Storm voting no. “After hearing four plan commission applications during the meeting, Commission Member Thevenow asserted that improper notice of the meeting was made by the city and then recommended our proposal remain tabled,” Courtney said after the meeting. “The city’s notice was published on May 30th, well ahead of the plan commission meeting and was not improper, but despite city attorney Jenner’s recommendation that the meeting could continue and denying me the privilege to address the plan commission, the hearing was adjourned and now has to be rescheduled. We look forward to eventually being able to present our proposal and hear public comment at a meeting in the near future so that the process can move forward.” Later in the week Courtney was working to schedule a date and time when all nine Plan Commission members as well as others relevant to the meeting could meet in a special session to take up the matter. He noted scheduling was being complicated by work schedules, summer vacations and other obligations as well as official notice publication requirements.

Delayed interest payment requires moving funds for Park debt

BY BOB DEMAREE

A delayed interest payment resulted a transfer of funds for the city of Madison to meet a June 30 deadline for repayment of a temporary loan involving a $575,000 shortfall in the Parks and Recreation Department budget in 2024.

The Board of Public Works and Safety (BPWS) approved the transfer at its meeting Monday in regards to a $101,000 interest payment from the funds the city will be receiving from $12 million State Revolving Fund (SRF) money.

At the June 3 City Council meeting, a resolution was approved transferring appropriations totaling $474,000 within the Park Department — Sunrise Golf Course NRO Fund for the 2025 budget and reducing budget appropriations and transfer funds to repay a temporary loan transfer made on behalf of Parks from the Sewer Capital Improvement Fund.

But the remaining $101,000 has been delayed because a portion of the city's water infrastructure project must still be finalized involving rehabilitation the city's six water storage tanks by contractor MW Cole Construction.

City Utilities Manager Brian Jackson said, "They have not yet completed their work", adding there is a $1,000 a day penalty until it's done. "Once they are finished, we can process their last claim and close out the (SRF) loan." Jackson is hopeful that work is nearly done, and MW Cole can wrap up the project in the next week. But even so, he said it will take several weeks for the the SRF loan to be finalized and funds to be processed.

City Controller Mindy McGee said, "The interest on the bond money won't be paid out until the project is completely closed out which takes a while" and it won't be received by June 30.

In order to meet the June 30 deadline, the city is taking $101,000 from the Water Capital Reserve Fund to pay off the Parks debt. The resolution allows the $101,000 to be refunded to the Water Capital Reserve Fund by the end of this year.

In other business, the BPWS:

- Approved the transfer of a 2017 Ford Explorer from Madison Police Department to Prince of Peace Schools for the School Resource Officer at Shawe Memorial Junior/Senior High and Pope John XXIII Elementary schools. The transfer of three vehicles within the city was also approved — a 2008 Chevrolet Trail Blazer from the city fire department to Madison Regional Airport, and two 2018 Ford Explorers from the city department to the fire department.

- Approved streets closings for the 28th annual Salvation Army Rockin' on the River car show, much of the closure to be located on Vaughn Drive Saturday, Aug. 30.
- Salvation Army Major Janelle Cleaveland, who was assigned to Madison in July of 2022, announced she is being transferred to Kokomo. Her last day in Madison will be July 6. "I will miss several places, local restaurants, and the wonderful people that are here," she said.
- Approved a PACE extension on a $25,000 dilapidated structures grant for the completion of 118 West Fifth Street, which makes the new deadline July 15, 2026. Also approved a final $12,500 payment at 604 Mulberry, which had previously received a $12,500 mid-point award for the $25,000 PACE dilapidated structures grant, and a $7,500 rehabilitation grant at 1016 West Second Street that included tuck-pointing and repainting.

- City Attorney Joe Jenner provided an update on a lawsuit between the city and TT and C Property Management LLC in which the city's Historic District Board of Review denied the use of shipping containers for storage by Lanthier Winery at the northeast and west corners of 701 West First Street in downtown Madison. Jenner said the city filed a petition to enforce the HDBR decision, which was appealed and upheld by the court. A trial date has been set for Oct. 1. "We'll go to trial and get a final answer," said Jenner.

And then our first ever Unbroken Circle Festival will kick off in September with their blend of exciting Alt/Outlaw Country Sept. 4-6. Pre-sale tickets are always cheaper than buying at the gate, plus it really helps the festival organizers to get an idea how many people to

That's the now two day MadHop music frenzy all around downtown Madison. In just six or so short years this event has become many people's favorite local fest, and it just keeps getting bigger and better every year. Hanover OKs water hike effective Sept. 1

Hanover Town Council approved a water rate increase at its meeting Tuesday to take effect Sept. 1.

The rate increase to customers was in response to a rate increase in wholesale water costs by supplier Kent Water Company last year.

Last month, the town council also approved stormwater utility fees of $5 per household monthly fee and $1 per Equivalent Resident Unit (ERU) per business. The stormwater utility fee is required for the town to pursue loans and grants to provide funding to address storm water, which the town currently has four problems areas. The new stormwater rates will take effect Aug. 1.

In other business, the council:

- Approved $12,816.68 to replace seven light poles in the parking lot at Hanover Community Park that date back to the 1970s and need to be replaced. Earlier cost estimates were for $77,520, but Superintendent of Streets and Utilities Scott Williams will be taking on the project along with Kenny Degler and Mike Lichlyter and provide a substantial savings. Funds are coming from the Lilly Endowment funds through the College and Collaboration Grant. Town Council member Debbie Kroger noted the cost savings will provide more funds for other projects that can be done for the town through the Lilly Endowment.

- Approved $10,450 for correcting a dip in the curbing on two driveways on Volz Drive that were missed during work on that street as part of a Community Crossings Matching Grant approximately four years ago.
- Town Attorney Patrick Magrath is drafting an interlocal agreement with Jefferson County for utilizing County Building Inspector Josh Cline for Hanover building inspections, which once completed will need both town and county approval.
- Approved the purchase of 350 stickers to go on containers for recycling at $2.40 each, a total of $840, to be purchased from Fiction Wraps of Hanover.

Rethinking Retirement Portfolio Allocation in 2025: Beyond the 60/40 Rule

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

For years, a common approach to retirement portfolio allocation involved a fixed blend of stocks and bonds, often the "60/40 rule" (60% equities, 40% fixed income). This strategy, popularized in the mid-1990s, was frequently paired with the "4% rule," suggesting that retirees could withdraw 4% of their initial portfolio value annually without running out of money. However, recent economic shifts and market volatility have cast significant doubt on these once-standard practices.

The financial landscape has changed dramatically. Unforeseen events, such as the 2008 credit crisis, geopolitical conflicts, prolonged periods of low interest rates, and persistent inflation, have highlighted the vulnerabilities of relying on static allocation percentages. As of 2025, the Federal Reserve's policy direction, aimed at managing inflation, has led to rising interest rates, which has impacted both stocks and treasuries. This has caused traditional 60/40 portfolios to experience significant value drops, making the long-accepted 4% withdrawal rate increasingly precarious; experts now suggest an even lower sustainable withdrawal rate.

The Case for Guaranteed Income

Financial professionals often struggle to create a foolproof system that truly guarantees retirement income, especially given market uncertainties. This ongoing debate leads some to question why investors would rely solely on inherently unpredictable factors when a guaranteed solution exists.

A guaranteed annuity offers a direct answer to these allocation concerns. By transferring a portion of retirement funds to an insurance company, individuals can secure a predictable, lifelong income stream. This approach effectively outsources the allocation decisions for that specific portion of retirement savings, eliminating the need to constantly monitor market fluctuations or worry about depleting funds.

Why the Hesitation from Wall Street?

Some observers note Wall Street's general reluctance to promote guaranteed income products like annuities. One perspective is that guaranteed products, once purchased, typically keep funds out of active management by brokerages, reducing opportunities for transaction fees and ongoing asset management charges. When retirement funds are placed in a guaranteed annuity, they become less susceptible to the "money in motion" that often drives Wall Street's business model.

The Simplicity and Security of Annuities

Consider the simplicity: a guaranteed annuity can provide income for a specified period or for life, often covering both spouses. If individuals live a long life, they benefit from consistent payments. Should they pass away prematurely, many annuities include provisions to pass any unused portion to named beneficiaries. This offers a straightforward path to financial peace of mind.

Ultimately, for those seeking to simplify their retirement income planning and ensure a more secure financial future, allocating a portion of their hard-earned retirement funds to a guaranteed annuity can provide a robust layer of protection, allowing them to sleep well at night while others navigate market complexities.

MADISON COURIER GIRLS TENNIS PLAYERS OF THE YEAR

Crawford, Barnes team up for spectacular season

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern girls tennis coach Kenny Garrett has had his share of great doubles teams over the years. So when he says that Raygan Crawford and Ava Barnes might be the best, it's enough to make one take notice. The pair went 17-2 this past season at No. 1 doubles and could always be counted on to give the Rebels their best effort and usually a victory en route to their second-straight team sectional championships. "They played pretty consistent all year long," Garrett said. "They got better as the season went on, and once you get around to sectional time, you feel pretty confident that you're going to get wins out of your doubles team. So that helps a lot." That consistency is why Crawford and Barnes are this year's Madison Courier Girls Tennis Players of the Year. It is the first time that a doubles team has been honored in such a way and marks Crawford's second-such award after winning Girls Swimmer of the Year as a freshman four years ago. The duo began playing doubles together last year after Garrett made a mid-season lineup tweak that paid instant dividends. They lost only two matches together prior to the tournament and helped lead the Rebels to a regional runner-up finish. They then hit the ground running this year. After an early season loss to Scottsburg, Barnes and Crawford didn't lose again until the regional, including avenging the earlier loss to Scottsburg. "It went really well. Ava, and I had a very successful season, and I'm very happy about that. We worked very hard for it," Crawford said. "It was good when we beat Scottsburg again and got over that little hump," Barnes said. "We did that working together." While Barnes, a junior, has played doubles all of her career, it was a new experience for Crawford, who had always been a singles player. But it didn't take the pair long to develop chemistry.

Thunder ride Williams to 3-2 NBA Finals lead over Pacers

BY TIM REYNOLDS
AP BASKETBALL WRITER

OKLAHOMA CITY — Game 5 was starting to look like Game 1 all over again. Oklahoma City, at home, takes a huge lead. Indiana comes roaring back in the fourth quarter. Indiana won that one. This time, the Thunder crafted a different ending — and a 3-2 lead in the NBA Finals was their reward. Jalen Williams scored a career playoff-high 40 points, MVP Shai Gilgeous-Alexander added 31 and the Thunder moved one win from a title by beating the Pacers 120-109 on Monday night. "We're learning," said Williams, whose previous playoff best was 34. It was the 10th — and by far, the biggest — time the Thunder stars combined for more than 70 points in a game. Williams was 14 of 24 from the field, and Gilgeous-Alexander added 10 assists. "It wasn't a perfect game at all and there's a lot of room for growth," Thunder coach Mark Daigneault said. "But our improvement from Game 4 to Game 5 was critical." Pascal Siakam had 28 points for Indiana, which will host Game 6 on Thursday night. TJ McConnell added 18 for the Pacers, who whittled an 18-point deficit down to two in the fourth — then watched the Thunder pull away again, and for good. "It kind of went away from us," Siakam said. "But the fight was there." It was, but now everything favors the Thunder. Teams that win Game 5 of an NBA Finals that was tied at 2-2 have gone on to win the series 23 times in 31 previous opportunities, or 74%. And teams with a 3-2 lead in the finals have won 40 times in 49 previous opportunities, or 82%. But Game 5 was not easy. Far from it. Down by 18 late in the second quarter, the Pacers — the comeback kings of these playoffs, with as many wins in this postseason from 15 points down or more (five) than the rest of the league has combined, including in Game 1 of this series — did what they do, chipping away. And they did it with Tyrese Haliburton reduced to basically playing decoy on offense because of a leg issue that he aggravated in the first quarter. "He's not 100%," Pacers coach Rick Carlisle said. "It's pretty clear." Led by McConnell, who scored 13 points in just under seven minutes of the third, the Pacers got within five late in that quarter. Then, Siakam went to work — a pair of free throws with 9:19 left got Indiana within four, then a 3-pointer about a minute later made it 95-93. In the play-by-play era of the NBA, starting with the 1997 playoffs, teams with leads of 15 points or more in the finals were 80-9. Make that 81-9 now, and the Thunder are one win away from giving Oklahoma City its first NBA title. "That was honestly the same exact game as Game 1," Williams said. "Learning through these finals, that's what makes a team good." One more win, and his team will be certified as great.

McConnell could be key to Pacers extending NBA Finals

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana Pacers guard T.J. McConnell just keeps doing the unthinkable. At 6-foot-1, he repeatedly backs his way into the paint and outmaneuvers the NBA's giants for scores. At age 33, he still runs the court with a speed opponents struggle to contend with. And defensively, he often harasses some of the league's top stars into miscues. Now, though, McConnell faces his biggest challenge: Potentially replacing two-time All-Star Tyrese Haliburton on Thursday night as the Pacers try to extend their season against Oklahoma City in Game 6 of the NBA Finals. Haliburton said Wednesday he will try to play through the strained right calf because of the stakes. Coach Rick Carlisle called his catalyst a game-time decision, an indication that at the very least, McConnell could log more minutes than usual. Either way, McConnell promises he'll be ready. "I've just got to inject energy, like I always do," McConnell said after Wednesday's practice. "Our starters have willed us here and we've just kind of got to go in there and, like I said, inject energy where it's needed and do our jobs." So far, he has thrived in the spotlight. While McConnell's averages of 9.0 points, 4.0 assists, 2.9 rebounds in 16.7 minutes look ordinary, his presence has been extraordinary. He became the first bench player in Finals history to record five assists and five steals in one game, and he helped the Pacers cut a 16-point second-half deficit to two while Haliburton struggled in Monday's 120-109 loss that gave the Thunder a 3-2 lead. But it's the way he plays the game that has made McConnell such a fan favorite in a basketball-loving state that prefers toughness and defense to stars or point totals. The truth is, this is how he learned the game from his father, Tim, a longtime prep coach from suburban Pittsburgh who has become a regular in the crowd during this playoff run. "Everyone knows what they've got to do when they're on the floor with T.J.," Pacers forward Obi Toppin said. "We expect him to get in the paint. We expect him to move the ball. We know what he's doing when we're out there, so it makes our job easier." Toppin, McConnell and Benedict Mathurin have formed a tight bond on the court despite their differing backgrounds and styles. Toppin, the 2019-20 College Basketball Player of the Year, and Mathurin, the first Canadian-born player to attend the NBA's Latin America Academy, were lottery picks. Toppin also won the 2022 NBA Slam Dunk title, while Mathurin was a 2023 all-rookie selection. McConnell, meanwhile, went undrafted out of Arizona — the same school Mathurin attended — and has had to repeatedly reprove himself. The critics at Duquesne thought he was too scrawny to make a difference even at a non-power conference school only to watch the Pittsburgh-tough guy transfer to Arizona and help the Wildcats reach the Elite Eight in his two seasons in Tucson. McConnell's strong pre-season in 2015 prompted the Philadelphia 76ers to keep him for the next four seasons before letting him test free agency and land with the Pacers. Then early last season, it appeared McConnell's career might be teetering. Carlisle told McConnell early last season he wouldn't be in the regular rotation, a

Coastal Carolina ousts Louisville 11-3 to reach CWS finals

BY ERIC OLSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA, Neb. — Coastal Carolina advanced to the College World Series finals with a 11-3 victory over Louisville on Wednesday, scoring five of its six first-inning runs before making an out and extending its win streak to 26 games. The Chanticleers (56-11) will play LSU (51-15) — a 6-5 walk-off winner over SEC rival Arkansas — in the best-of-three finals starting Saturday. They are going for their second national championship in two all-time appearances in Omaha. They won their first in 2016. "To do what we did today versus that team, as well coached as that team is, is really amazing," coach Kevin Schnall said. "The Chanticleers are one of two teams in the entire country still playing. It's incredible, but it's not unbelievable. And it's not unbelievable because we've got really good players, really good players."

Louisville (42-24) started left-hander Colton Hartman, primarily a reliever who hadn't appeared in a game since May 17. He didn't last long. Caden Bodine singled leading off and Sebastian Alexander and Blake Barthol were hit by pitches to load the bases. Walker Mitchell punched a ball into right field to bring in two runs, and then Hartman issued a four-pitch walk. Out went Hartman (2-1) and in came Jake Schweitzer. Colby Thorndyke greeted him with his second bases-clearing double in two games to make it 5-0. Thorndyke came home on Ty Dooley's one-out single and finished 3 for 4 with five RBIs. "We always preach when the bases are loaded, the pressure is on the pitcher," Thorndyke said. "It's not on the hitter. He's got to throw three strikes. If he throws four balls then it's a run. So we always preach the pressure is on the pitcher." The Chanticleers padded their lead with Pete Mihos' two-run triple in the fifth and two more runs in the sixth. Coastal Carolina is 43-0 when leading after six innings. The Chanticleers made an impressive run through their bracket, beating Arizona 7-4 and Oregon State 6-2 before eliminating the Cardinals. They led or were tied all the way through except for a half-inning against Arizona. "These guys, ooh, they've done it in the last half of the season, in the conference tournament, in the regionals, in supers, in Omaha, against, as we say, the best teams," Louisville coach Dan McDonnell said. "It's impressive what they've done." Riley Eikhoff (7-2), making his second start in the CWS, held the Cardinals scoreless until Tague Davis drove an RBI double into the right-center gap in the sixth. Matthew Potok, Hayden Johnson and Dominick Carbone combined for 3 2/3 shutout innings of relief. "Offense goes out there gives you a big lead, it's big pressure off yourself," Eikhoff said. "You go out there, just do your thing, try and make pitches. I made quite a few pitches today, and the defense made great plays behind me. Without them, the score wouldn't be the same today." Cardinals ace Patrick Forbes, who pitched 5 1/3 innings in a 4-3 loss to Oregon State on Friday, had asked to be the starter against the Chanticleers on four days' rest, according to ESPN. Coach Dan McDonnell planned to hold him back for a possible second bracket final against the Chanticleers on Thursday or use him for one inning if needed Wednesday. Hartman's disastrous start all but ended Louisville's hopes of forcing a winner-take-all game. "I'm just grateful to be along for this journey and just be one of the people or one of the teams that can go down in the history books for Louisville," Eddie King Jr. said. "This is a special team and I'm just sad that it came to an end today."

60 boats in 12 classes compete at Dennis Holt Mini Regatta

BY THE COURIER STAFF

The tradition of the Dennis Holt Memorial Mini Regatta continued Saturday by the PropWalkers Model Boat Club with 60 boats in 12 classes competing at Krueger Lake on the grounds of Jefferson Proving Ground.

“We lost quite a few pre-registered racers at the last minute due to fear of rain. Luckily we only had two brief rounds of rain, maybe lasting 15 minutes total,” said Kevin Lichlyter. “We kept on racing through the rain with everyone in their rain jackets until the sun came back and the humidity took over.”

The race is named in memory of Dennis Holt, who died in August 2000 at the age of 47. He was a popular member of the Madison community taught industrial technology at Madison Junior High School, was a competitor in the mini-hydroplane series and volunteer with the Miss Madison Racing Team.

Indiana Fever guard Caitlin Clark (22) is hit by Connecticut Sun guard Marina Mabrey (3) during a scuffle in the second half of a WNBA basketball game in Indianapolis on Tuesday.

Fever win 88-71 slugfest over Sun

Clark scores 20 as Fever secure Commissioner’s Cup spot

INDIANAPOLIS — Caitlin Clark had 20 points, six assists and four 3-pointers and the Indiana Fever beat the Connecticut Sun 88-71 on Tuesday night in a physical game that included three late ejections.

With 46.1 seconds left in the fourth quarter, Connecticut guard Jacy Sheldon made a steal and raced the other way before being wrapped up by Sophie Cunningham under the basket for a hard foul. Sheldon got up quickly and got into a shoving match with Cunningham, leading to Cunningham, Sheldon and Lindsay Allen all getting ejected.

Sheldon was also the center of another official review in the third quarter after she poked Clark in the eye and then Marina Mabrey came in late to shove Clark to the floor. Three technical fouls were called, leading to Clark's three free throws for a 58-45 lead.

The Indiana win, combined with an Atlanta loss to New York, secured the Fever's spot in the Commissioner's Cup with a 4-1 record. The Fever held the tiebreaker with the Liberty after a 102-

88 win on Saturday.

LIBERTY 86, DREAM 81

NEW YORK — Sabrina Ionescu had her second consecutive 34-point game, and New York rallied from a 17-point deficit in the second half to edge Atlanta.

The Liberty trailed 62-47 midway through the third quarter before taking over behind Ionescu's 15 points and Breanna Stewart's 11. Stewart finished with 23 points.

The game marked the end of the Commissioner's Cup games. Both teams entered with 3-1 records, tied with Indiana. Atlanta would have advanced to the final with a win but Indiana, which beat Connecticut 88-71, had the tiebreaker over the Liberty thanks to the Fever handing New York its first loss of the season on Saturday.

Jonquel Jones had 10 points and 10 rebounds for the Liberty (10-1).

Rookie Te-Hina Paopao led the Dream (8-4) with 16 points, all in the first half. Alisha Gray added 14 points and Brionna Jones and Rhyné Howard both had 13.

MYSTICS 79, SKY 72

CHICAGO — Brittney Sykes scored 32 points on 13-of-24 shooting and Washington overcame a 12-point halftime deficit to beat Chicago.

The Mystics trailed 44-

32 at halftime before doubling up Chicago in the third quarter, 24-12, to tie it at 56-all entering the fourth.

Sykes converted a three-point play with 2:17 left for a 74-70 lead.

Sykes also grabbed a key offensive rebound with 37 seconds left, with Washington ahead 75-72. She brought it out past the 3-point arc to reset and then dribbled into the lane for a jumper that came up short, but Kiki Iriafen grabbed the offensive rebound and scored for a five-point lead.

Washington forward Shakira Austin blocked Kamilla Cardoso's shot at the other end and Sonia Citron grabbed the defensive rebound and made two free throws to seal it.

Citron finished with 13 points and nine rebounds for Washington (5-7).

WINGS 80, VALKYRIES 71

ARLINGTON, Texas — Paige Bueckers scored 20 points, Arike Ogunbowale added 19 points, six assists and three steals, and Dallas won their first home game of the season, over Golden State.

Dallas (2-11) snapped a seven-game losing streak with its first victory since beating Connecticut 109-87 on May 27.

Friedl drives in a pair and Reds rally for 3rd straight win 6-5 over Twins

BY JEFF WALLNER

CINCINNATI — TJ Friedl hit a decisive two-out, two-run double in the sixth inning and the Cincinnati Reds rallied for their third straight win, 6-5 over the Minnesota Twins on Tuesday night.

Cincinnati has won eight of its last 11 games to climb within two games of the third NL wild-card spot.

Byron Buxton's solo homer off Andrew Abbott put the Twins ahead 1-0 in the third. Buxton had reached over the center field wall to rob Cincinnati's Will Benson of a solo home run to end the second inning before hitting his solo shot just over Friedl's glove in nearly the same spot.

David Festa held Cincinnati hitless until the fourth when Benson's two-run double put the Reds ahead 2-1.

Festa left the game in the fourth with a right hand contusion after allowing four runs, two earned.

Jake Fraley drove in two more runs with a single to make the score 4-1.

A throwing error by Reds third baseman Christian Encarnacion-Strand opened the door for a Twins rally in the sixth. Harrison Bader's three-run homer caromed over the wall off Fraley's glove to put them ahead 5-4.

Abbott allowed five runs, but only one earned, dropping his ERA to 1.84. He struck out five and didn't walk a batter.

Friedl's double in the sixth off Brock Stewart (1-1) drove home the go-ahead runs.

Emilio Pagan pitched a scoreless ninth to earn his 17th save. Scott Barlow (2-0) earned the victory for Cincinnati with 1 1/3 innings, striking out two.

One of the big plays of the game was when Buxton reached over the center field wall to rob Benson of a solo home run to end the second then came to bat with one out in the third and hit a solo homer just over Friedl's glove in nearly the same spot.

Browns rookie QB Sanders ticketed at 101 mph

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Browns rookie quarterback Shedeur Sanders is accused of driving a pickup truck 101 mph on a suburban Cleveland interstate earlier this week.

The Strongsville Police Department stopped Sanders at about 12:30 a.m. Tuesday in a 60 zone on Interstate 71 near the Ohio Turnpike, according to a report provided to local media.

Sanders, 23, could pay a $250 fine to waive the fourth-degree misdemeanor case, according to police.

The Browns did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Sanders, the son of Hall of Fame player Deion Sanders, was drafted in the fifth round (144th overall) of the NFL draft this spring, even though many projections had him going in the first round. He played under his father at the University of Colorado.

Sanders is competing against three other quarterbacks with the Browns. They wrapped up minicamp last week and will open training camp in late July.

discussion Carlisle described as one of the toughest he's ever had. But McConnell wasn't discouraged.

"I think coaches in the league have a tough job because you can't please everybody, so sometimes you're the odd man out," he said. "So you can put your head down and sulk about it and make excuses or you can put your head down and go to work. I chose the latter."

The Pacers couldn't be happier with the results.

McConnell played so well during last year's breakout playoff run that Indiana gave him a four-year, $45 million contract extension and played even better during this year's run to the Eastern Conference title.

Can he help save their season Thursday night? Perhaps.

Just don't count him out.

"We've been in this position before," McConnell said. "So we just, you know, we can't flinch. We've got to be ready for the challenge because they're going to come out ready and, like I said, we just have more work to do."

"You have to communicate more in doubles and it's easier to not get in your head because we encourage each other when we play doubles," Crawford said.

In almost every way, the two players compliment each other. Garrett said each has a strength that makes up for the other's weaknesses.

"I think they're both pretty aggressive on their shots. They work well together. They talk well, and when it comes to doubles, that's number one. You've got to communicate, and they do a really good job of that," Garrett said.

"Raygan's probably a little bit more solid at the net but Ava's a little better at the baseline, so they really helped each other out. Now that's flip-flopped a little bit a few matches, but from what I can see for the season, that's probably the main thing. Plus, they just hate to lose and that's the same for our whole team. That's why we're successful."

Both girls participate in other sports. Crawford also played volleyball and will swim at Hanover College in the fall while Barnes dances with the Fit For the King Flyers and used to play volleyball. But they said they love tennis for the differences from their other activities.

"I used to play volleyball where it's a big team thing. It's kind of similar where I work with Raygan in like a smaller team," Barnes said.

"So it's the same, but still a little different."

"I like that it's outside, and I get to actually be in fresh air, rather than in a building or in water," Crawford said with a smile. "But I also just like that I'm on my own, kind

Crawford will swim her father, Hanover Coach Jay Crawford, in college and while she considered also playing tennis, she decided it would be better to not fill up her plate completely.

"I'm going through their pre-veterinary program, and then I'm going to go back and get my doctorate in veterinary medicine," Crawford said of her plans at Hanover. "At first, I actually was gonna play tennis there, and then I talked to my dad some, and I ended up choosing swim because I didn't want to have two sports. I chose swim just because I can come out here and play tennis whenever I want."

Barnes still has another year left at Southwestern and is looking at possibly attending Indiana University to study occupational therapy. She said that it will be hard to adjust to life on the court without Crawford next to her.

"I honestly have no idea what that's going to look like next year," Barnes said. "I don't think I want to play singles."

"Oh, Ava's gonna play singles next year. She'll be a singles player," Garrett said with a smile. "We'll probably move up Kaylee (Hite) and Jocelyn (Johnson) and that'll open up two spots at two doubles and we feel pretty solid with Emma (Hatton) and Annie (Ford) at singles. So we'll see what girls want to do come this summer and work and try to get that two double spot."

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may want to dig deeper to uncover the facts instead of relying on a guiding light right now. Your intuition could offer subconscious wisdom after Monday. You could be steered toward a brighter, more secure future.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Focus on self-improvement and leading by example. You may feel certain that your ideas can change the world, however, some might not feel the same. Your social life could be unpredictable so be careful of new encounters or relationships.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The best money can buy may not be an extravagance. Others might not agree with your thinking and disapprove of your generosity. You may have reached a point where you're ready to spend but equally driven to work hard for more.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lucky breaks could beat clever plans when you least expect it. Over the next few days, you may turn dreams into reality with fortunate twists guiding you forward. Nevertheless, take your time and don't rush into a major plan or project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There may be a way to let common sense help you make more income. A little extra in the bank might be just what you need, so make a logical choice. Don't let emotions enslave you or dodge tough challenges that might be hard to pinpoint.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Driven allies may be deep into action plans, needing your thoughts and support from the sidelines. A desire for intimacy might temporarily take a backseat as critical projects take priority. If sleep eludes you, count and send out blessings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) The noise of others who don't see your vision could feel overwhelming. Cultivate any kind of grounding practice for yourself to find your center. Be more selective with your energy and release distractions while you work toward worthy goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Dreams of an upcoming getaway or social gathering might motivate you through the day, however, there could be a sudden change in plans. It may be helpful to listen closely to others' thoughts and tend to a partner's needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) As Oscar Wilde said, "Be yourself; everyone else is taken." There's no need to fake it; let your true authenticity shine. Others might recognize your value even if you try to conceal your true inner feelings behind a face mask.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your mind might buzz with fresh ideas begging to be shared and brought to life. Loved ones may catch onto your enthusiasm, but others need more than words to be convinced. Make important presentations next week or later if possible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your fierce determination can help set you up for success. A trusted friend, partner, or mentor could be ready to help you enrich your life and reach your biggest goal. Nevertheless, this might be a poor time to launch big plans or projects.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Don't restrict yourself without identifying possible leaks, the stars could be unfavorable for new investments or major purchases. Your inner circle may question your financial choices but trust your vision and ability to turn a profit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Sometimes the criticism you receive is nothing but a power play designed to chase you away or force you to agree. Trust your intuition; know what you're doing correctly and where you need improvement. Also listen to proven sources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Good planning could pay off when you share your rewards with others. If the way to someone's heart is through the stomach, cook up a meal or enjoy a candlelit dinner. Keep a lookout for something that is unique and different.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Gather all the facts before taking action. It might not be possible to please everyone when your finances are on the line. Generosity suits you; however, be cautious. Stay sincere, investigate doubts, and navigate conflicts with discernment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Pessimism and optimism could fight for your attention. You may feel held back by things that occurred in the past and unable to take steps for the future. A deep understanding of the obstacle you face can give you an advantage.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally you might be very adaptable but you could be feeling unexpectedly frustrated. Try to understand why this bothers you so much more than usual. Being calmer and more composed could help you to find a promising solution.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone might not understand what you tried to communicate. It may be easy to filter things through a personal agenda now. It can be helpful to ask relevant questions early on to make sure you're all on the same page.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may need to consider the advice of companions more carefully. Be careful not to be steered in a direction with less potential. Review your goals closely before making any new agreements that could lead to undesired consequences.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may feel frustrated because someone seems incapable of following through on plans or anything else. Consider communicating how their behavior can impact you. Demonstrate a sense of responsibility by keeping your promises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You might face challenging situations but could soon overcome them. Instead of focusing on a conflict at hand, start searching for the solution. The only question is how much you want it and how hard you're willing to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone's less than ideal mood might cause them to take things out on others. You don't have to take their behavior to heart and it's not your responsibility to fix it. However, a generous act could bring out their better side.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) While some may struggle with reasoning, you can excel at uncovering truth and distilling it into clear, effective steps. Cultivate your focus to avoid distractions and remain on track, no matter the challenges it may present.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may reach a point where piling up stuff isn't satisfying. Think long and hard about what possessions really matter to you. Consider what will be important to you and vital to your success when you enter the next stage of your life.
